SKILLS

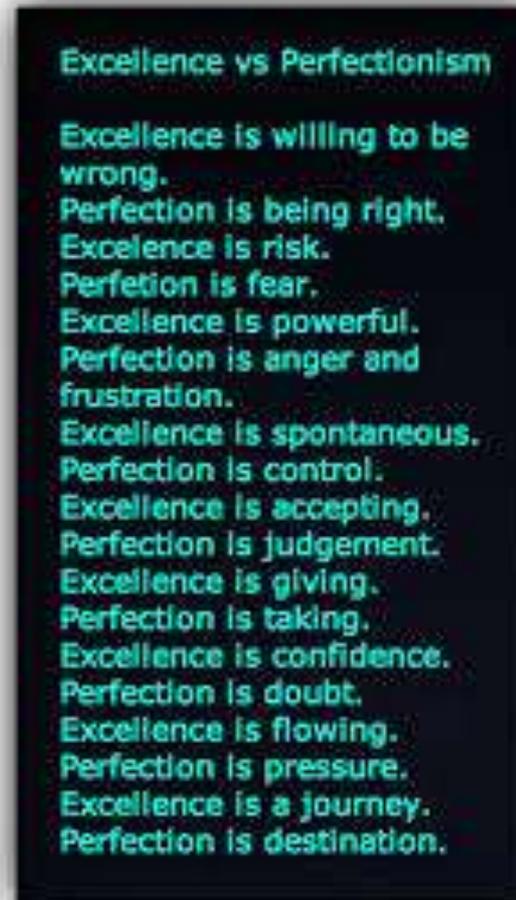

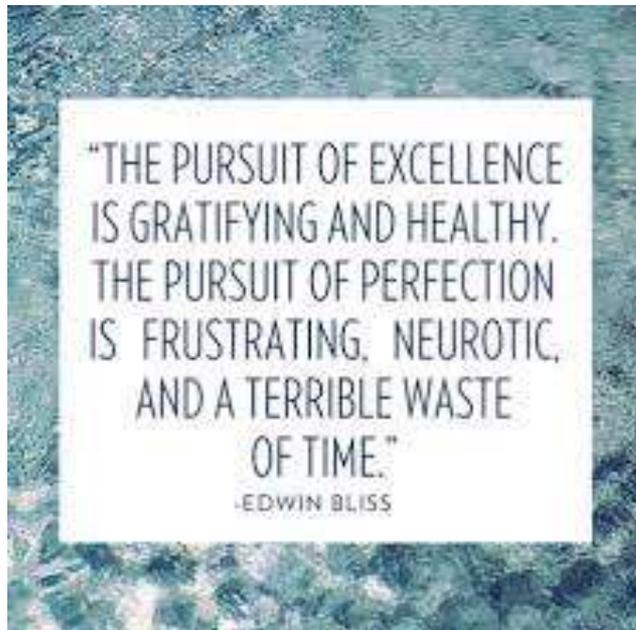

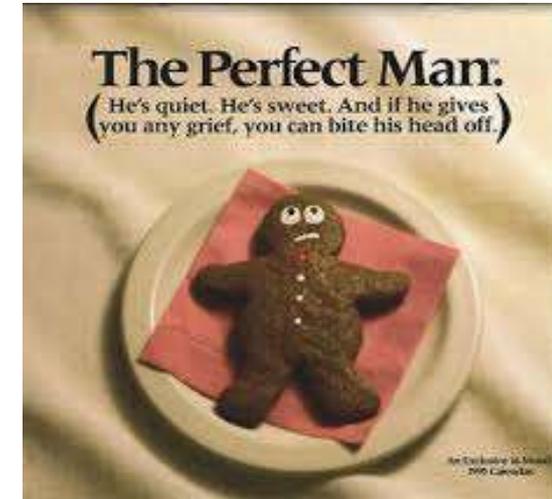

Remain consistent in your preparedness to change.

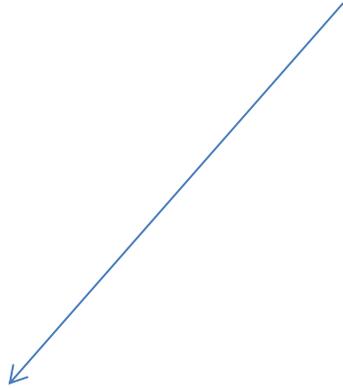

Globalization and democratization are no longer choices.

Aim for excellence and not perfection.

Graduate from professional to craftsman mind-set.

Have Conviction in your Purpose

- Be coherent to the extent that you should be able to hold on to the core, irrespective or rather inspite of challenges posed on that.
- If content is the king, context is the queen, ignore the later on your own peril.

The Buck Stops at YOU.

Take decisions and be prepared to face the consequences.

Leadership is hard, and at times dirty, even if thrilling.

To minimize the guilt, give credit, take blame and remain self-critical.

Choose the Right Enemy

Nothing can make you more heroic than choosing the right enemy.

Pick the toughest challenge first. If you have to eat frog, pick the ugliest first.

Hate more to lose than you love to win.
Whoever said winning or losing is not important has most likely ended up on losing side.

Keep Grounded & Adapting

Curiosity, humility and empathy are as important and as similar as your physical health, decline and deteriorate by default as you grow. Take additional care and nurture to minimize decay, you would need them more and more in your march ahead.

Look after & upto OTHERS

It is others who make you successful. Take good care of them.

Between those who work and those who take credit, chose the former group as it is less crowded and, surprisingly, ironically and definitely, chances of recognition are more there.
